The Casting
a sonnet for Alison

I didn't know if I should tell you I was pregnant
for Halloween, a twenty-one-year-old symbol of fertility and sex, cooing at tipsy of-age men who were in want of a feigning girl wearing an apron, pearls, a belly high and round. But a week before Christmas I hold your two-day-old son and I tell you, laughing, while he wrinkles his red face at my dry breast and wails, that I thought of you then, on my ghost-night spree.
Then I give you the only advice I know: let him beat wings on the hardwood floor of the church. Let him play the angel as I did, redemption cloaked in terry-cloth, halo trailing tinsel across a stage of toddler-lambs and regal preteens burdened with scented gifts, hymns surfacing as you bowed a blue shrouded head, and I escaped from view.

Budgeting

Nothing really changed. He kept busy.
Checks were still cashed on time and before he ran out of socks. That week he found the cheapest laundromat and began to bleed the envelope of its coins, four for whites, four for brights. Twenty dollars earned a dollar's credit and a free snack wrested from the vending machine. He practiced making a bag of cornnuts last two hours and thought of ways to use his extra dollar (he could leave the stove light on at night, sometimes).

He also looked for cheap paperbacks, brought thin ones in the hamper. But dot-matrix receipts curled from the bottom of the books, prices wagging his concentration from the thrill of words and fake sex. He already looked enough like someone who had just left his wife.

The paper envelope held nothing, but bulged
where quarters had hollowed new creases
into the slim white space, the tidy crescents

standing out as if he'd trapped the moon
under the envelope and pressed it,
oily cornnut blemishes like craters in half-finished pencil rubbings, records of precise phases.

He thought to write "Laundry" across the wrinkle,
one reminder that the creeping moon
meant more linen choked dry with the weekend dust
he hated, the thickest he'd ever seen.

Hope and healing begin here.

Every person, no matter how troubled, is worthy of love and care. For many, hope and healing begin with the programs and services available at Oaklawn.

Oaklawn has served the community since 1962 with the professional skills, innovative programs and empathetic care needed to treat those suffering from mental illness and addictions.

Before You Budget...
Before You Design...
Before You Build...

TALK TO ANCON

At Ancon, our expertise is in building... over 25 years experience backs our commitment to customer satisfaction... but what we do best is listen. Only by clearly understanding your expectations can we complete a facility that does what you want it to do, looks the way you want it to look, and costs exactly what you budgeted.

BEFORE WE DESIGN... BEFORE WE BUILD...WE LISTEN.

Talk to us by phone, fax, or e-mail.

COACHMEN INDUSTRIES INCORPORATED

We've Built American Dreams For 40 Years

Since 1964, the companies that make up the Coachmen Industries family have built the American dream for satisfied families across the land. As one of the nation's leading builders of recreational vehicles, including such familiar names as Coachmen®, Georgie Boy®, Sportscoach® and Viking®, we've helped families fulfill their dreams of traveling together, creating a lifetime of memories along the way. With our All American Homes® subsidiary, one of the largest producers of systems-built homes, we provide families with their dream homes. Whether you're on the road or in your neighborhood, Coachmen Industries helps assure you're always at home.

ANNA NEWBURN
EDITOR IN CHIEF

All campus activities were suspended Tuesday afternoon from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. as the Goshen College community paused to remember Ron Stutzman, professor of anthropology.

Stutzman died in his home Friday morning, Oct. 17, due to complications from cancer at age 61. He was diagnosed in July, and began receiving treatment early this fall. Despite his aggressive illness, Stutzman continued to teach, eventually using a microphone to amplify his voice for students.

Stutzman was on faculty at Goshen College for 23 years. During this time he served as chair of the department of sociology from Washington University in St. Louis.

Stutzman dedicated much of his professional work and research to issues concerning Latin and South America, which included serving as the faculty leader of the 1989-90 SST unit in Costa Rica, and just last May, leading a group of 12 students to Columbia for a month-long course.

While at Goshen College, Stutzman also formed the student-led worship service, Morning Song, in connection with College Mennonite Church. Stutzman was actively involved with spiritual life on campus, and delivered the homily at a Morning Song service just weeks before his death.

In a recent interview for an article that appeared in the Oct. 9 issue of The Record, Stutzman

Jesse sings "Bye, Bye, Bye" to Indie-Rock

KRISTIN BULLER
Chicago Correspondent

Jesse Miller (yes, that cute lil' fella who got hit by a car last semester), was recently spotted throwing all his CDs from his Chicago apartment balcony

Below, pizza delivery boys dodged the whizzing discs as Jesse jumped up and down, singing at the top of his lungs, "No it ain't no lie, baby bye bye bye!!" Sources report that ever since Jesse moved to the windy city and has been out of touch to his influential indie friends, he has instead emphatically joined Kristin Buller in her deep and everlasting love of the oh so popular boy band, *NSYNC. This musical crossover has led Jesse to realize the annoying repetitiveness found in albums that claim to be "music," but are really just the sounds of CDs skipping, combined with various horrendous electronic noises. This genre does not pump Jesse up, but throwing such named albums from a balcony sure gets his Mennonite adrenalin flowing.

Though Jesse adores *NSYNC and watches Pop Odyssey Tour 2001 daily, perfecting the dance moves, he is not boxing himself into the boy band niche. He sup-ally served as a bridge between Justin and the abandoned group members. In conflict mediation sessions, Jesse has worked to bring the positions and interests of everyone-Joey, Lance, Chris, J.C. and Justin-to the table, just as Carolyn Sherock-Shenk would want him to. A recent mediation session culminated into a spontaneous perfectly choreographed dance of a song revised just for Jesse. Formerly "Just the Two of Us" became "Just the Six of Us," as this reunited boy band and Jesse danced around the mediation room, out the door and through the streets of Chicago.

Reporting live from Chi-town, this is Lance's girlfriend.

Board of directors meets this weekend

BETH LEHMAN

The Goshen College board of directors will meet on campus this Friday and Saturday. The decision-making body, often a source of mystery for Goshen College students, meets in October, February and June. This meeting is unique because the Conference Advisory Board of Mennonite Church USA will be conferring with the board. Although the board suggests and approves the majority of decisions affecting campus, infant students do not know who its members are, when they meet or

The board – led by the chair Cheryl Miller – consists of twelve members appointed by the Mennonite Education Agency MEAL. Most of its members are 2C alumni, and many have or have had children attend as well. They are encouraged to express decisions as a body. "When the board speaks, it speaks with one voice," said Miller. He stated that all Board decisions are made unanimously with serious input from the college's "moral source."

Joel Fath, Mark Gingerich, Celeste Kennel-Shank, Rachel Lapp, Anna Newburn and Duane Stoltzfus traveled to El Salvador last week to report on how communities are being affected by fair-trade coffee standards.

The members of Goshen College the coffee delegation arrived in San Salvador this past Saturday as time for supper. They took part in a delegation sponsored by CRISPAZ (Christians for Peace in El Salvador) and the fair-trade company Equal Exchange.

Here is a brief overlook of their week's activities.

Saturday (17 Jan) – Arrived in San Salvador

Sunday – Visited the national Romero's tomb. Attended the BASE community church service in the basement of the national cathedral. Traveled to Romero's church where he was shot and then visited his home.

Monday – Traveled to coffee cooperative Las Colinas, in the western region of the country, within sight of Guatemala. Spent the day speaking with the cooperative members and viewing the coffee production process. Spent the night with cooperative members.

Tuesday – Went to the mountain slopes to talk with cooperative members picking coffee.

The initial construction plans are already underway for an apartment building on campus that would accompany a shift to four-year residency, a plan in which all students live on campus or in a college-owned group house.

The Goshen College Board met Oct. 9-11 and discussed plans for the new building that would house upper classmen and would replace the current option of living in a non-college owned off-campus house or apartment.

"The reality is, it's a national trend," said Bill Born, vice president of Student Life, of the move towards on-campus residency for all students. Born stressed that the financial benefits of having more students on campus was not the driving force of the plan, though it is a factor.

"When you [on campus] ... it's kind of a security," said Born. Born believes that having upperclassmen closer to campus would increase student leadership. The new apartments, which would be
